An unpretentious, easy to understand take on all HiFi, concentrating on products; their design, usage & sound quality, without complex language.

- About me; I have a background in insurance and loss adjusting and have been a HiFi enthusiast for ten years.
- I've started my Facebook, Twitter, YouTube and Website presence to promote this slightly different easier approach to HiFi reviewing;
- Engaging, balanced and independent, non technical, comparison based reviews, to position products main qualities for manufacturers and consumers alike.
- Combined c100k online views so far using adaptive clean website design suiting all devices.
- Each product is reviewed by short video and full written reviews, in easy to read, well punctuated language.
- Reviews concisely describe main product features and main sound quality characteristics.

I'm a 'music first' HiFi enthusiast; HiFi serves the music, not vice versa. I'm enthusiastic for faithfully reproduced audio & conveying this to encourage better take up of quality audio, at all budgets, broadening HiFi appeal as being a non exclusive.

My ethos;

- As lifestyle products I use adaptive and captive ways to attract audiences with the way I present products.
- I show products in use, which are well photographed in situ, not just stock photos. Always looking at original ways to do so.
- I have reviewed products from Chord Electronics, Chord Cables, Cyrus, and Innuos, and other well known brands.
- My review site is called the 13th Note - as great sounding products should create an additional note!
- By conducting well constructed written and video reviews, I reach a larger captive market of audio enthusiasts.
- Currently galvanising a fast developing professional presence on the web and social media, which I'm looking to grow for the audio enthusiast and for commercial opportunities.
- I listen to other reviewers and customer opinions and regularly engage consumers on Facebook, and YouTube, where there are large captive audiences, to understand audio products.
- I welcome all approaches to review your HiFi products to properly convey what they achieve to get people closer to the music. Please let me know how I can help you today.
